Democratic State Committee could fill vacancy, write-in campaign is possible

In his own words, State Representative Garrett Bradley "would never give less than a 100 percent commitment" to his constituency.

That's why the Hingham Democrat is resigning from the legislature effective Aug. 1 after deciding to accept a senior management position within the Thornton

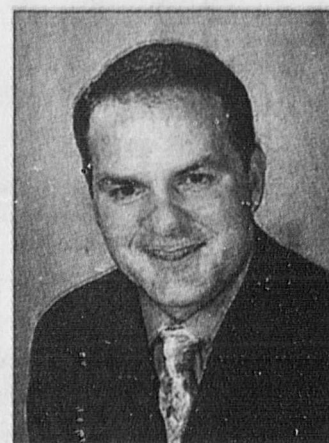

Law Firm, where he is an attorney.

"This is a significant career opportunity for me and will require 100 percent of my time and attention," he said. "It was a difficult decision but it's an

More than 1,000 athletes enjoy spectacular weather for the swim, run and ride

With clear blue skies above and sunshine streaming down, the morning of the 10th annual Cohasset Triathlon could not have been more different from the wet, windy dawn that all but shut down last year's race. And that pretty much set the vibe for the whole day.

"It was perfect," said Race

Director Bill Burnett. "Just absolutely perfect. The weather was wonderful, we had no major medical issues, and the mood was awesome."

New Osgood principal can't wait for school to start

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

The new principal at Osgood School has the energy of a kid who just found out she's getting an extra recess.

"I'm beyond excited," said Lisa Farrell, who officially starts her new job on Friday, July 1. "I haven't been this excited in a long time. I can't wait to be part of the community and meet all the kids."

The first year will be purely educational for Farrell, who said she has no plans to swoop in and make major changes without first taking the time to get to know the faculty, the kids, and the parents. It's daunting, starting over in a new place, and that's why she wants to start with trust.

"I don't have any hidden agendas; I'm just in it for the kids," said Farrell. "But I know it's stressful having a new administrator come in." That's why she'll be scheduling two

Young athletes race to beat diabetes

Race Director Bill Burnett talks to eager young athletes about the Junior Tri. COURTESY PHOTO

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

Everyone's a winner at the Cohasset Junior Triathlon.

According to Race Director Bill Burnett, that's the vision for the event. Any child who's willing to train hard, race hard, and give up a Saturday to benefit the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation is a winner in his book.

Children with juvenile type 1 diabetes have to monitor their blood sugar levels by pricking their finger eight or more times a day and injecting insulin as needed, usually four to five times daily. Even with new insulin pump technology, a type 1 diabetes diagnosis changes a kid's life - and the lives of their family members - forever.

The Junior Tri also benefits the Cohasset Swim Center, which has been hosting the swim portion of the event since it began in 2014. For Burnett, giving back to the local community is just as important as helping researchers find a cure for juvenile diabetes.

The race is a little bit different for each age group. For athletes eight years old or younger, there's a 50-yard swim (two lengths), a one-mile

POLICE BEAT

Crash causes damages on Government Island

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

The Cohasset Harbormaster called police to Government Island on Sunday, June 26 to investigate a hit and run crash. Cohasset officers observed that a granite post and several lengths of chain the surround the Light House Replica were damaged by a vehicle.

Officers recovered 2 large pieces of a vehicle's front end from the scene and reviewed video surveillance tapes of the Island. The video shows a grey car hitting the posts and chain at about 1:30 a.m. Sunday before taking off. Detectives are investigating. Damage to town property was in excess of $1,000.

Possible mental health issue

On Sunday, June 19 Cohasset Police received a call from a local pharmacy reporting that a Cohasset woman had just threatened suicide during a telephone conversation that devolved into a nasty verbal argument over prescription antidepressant medication. The caller from the pharmacy stated that the woman told her that she was going to kill herself.

Officers responded to the address that the pharmacy provided in Cohasset and could not find the woman. A BOLO ("be on the lookout") was put out to all local law enforcement agencies in the area to check the well-being of the female if she was located.

A couple of hours later, Braintree Police contacted Cohasset and advised that they found the woman staying in one of their local motels. They talked to her and she denied making any statements to the pharmacy and was generally uncooperative. Braintree Police reported that the female was no longer a threat to herself and cleared.

Purse stolen from car on King Street

On Monday, June 20 a 58-year-old female came to the police station and reported that her Kate Spade purse and $50 in cash was stolen from her 2011 Volvo Sport Utility Vehicle that was parked at Avalon on King Street.

The victim reported that the vehicle was unlocked and the purse was on her front seat.

She stated the purse is worth approximately $300. There was no damage to the car. Officers are investigating.

Missing delivery in North Cohasset

A 46-year old Cohasset resident called police to her home on Monday, June 20 to report that a package that had been delivered by the post office that day was stolen from her front lawn in North Cohasset.

The package contained vitamins, tennis racket grips, and an iPhone case. The items were ordered online and valued at approximately $50.

Police recommend that residents schedule deliveries for times when they are home or utilize notification Apps offered by some of the major delivery services like UPS.

Domestic disturbance on Sandy Beach

At about 5:45pm on Tuesday, June 21, police were called to Sandy Beach for a reported domestic disturbance between a male and female on the beach.

When officers arrived, lifeguards directed them to a 24-year old female from Brockton and a 27-year old male from Dover. Officers separated the two and were able to determine that the argument was verbal as opposed to physical.

The male said he got angry about the female refusing to carry beach supplies to the car, which led to an extremely loud, profanity-laden rant about his girlfriend, which beach goers were subjected to. Officers advised both the male and female of their recourse with regard to restraining orders and they left the beach.

Driver reports damage to car in hit and run

Officers are investigating a hit-and-run crash that was reported on Thursday, June 24 in the Cohasset House of Pizza parking lot.

A 30-year old female from Halifax called police and reported that she had parked her 1995 Mazda at 9 a.m. When she returned to her car at 3 p.m., there was damage along the entire driver's side.

She further reported that she found a note under her wiper that read "sorry for hitting your car", but there was no contact information on the paper. Damage is estimated to be in excess of $500.

Switch leads to savings

Lighting retrofits underway at schools, DPW

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

Exterior lighting retrofits are ongoing at Cohasset schools and department of public works.

Originally slated for early- to mid-June completion, the conversions have been delayed while retrofit teams wait for materials, said Town Engineer Brian Joyce. There are a variety of different kinds of bulbs being used, and not all of them are easy to get.

But in the end, this will all pay off – literally. Lighting retrofits at the high school, Deer Hill, Osgood, and DPW are projected to save Cohasset 2.5 percent in energy costs.

And they'll save a lot more than just money. Joyce said the old lights had to be replaced every year, and the Town had to rent a lift to reach them, not to mention hiring a contractor to do the job.

"All that's going to go away," said Joyce. With the new, more-efficient, longer-lasting LED bulbs, "Now we'll only have to do it every 10 years instead of every year."

These conversions were possible thanks to a Green Communities grant. The Alternative Energy Commission worked to make sure Cohasset was up to par so it would be eligible for such grants. The initial grant of $141,460 fully covered the exterior lighting retrofits.

Under the Green Communities Act, Massachusetts cities and towns must meet five criteria to be designated a Green Community and receive funding. The grants provide financial support for energy efficiency and renewable energy projects that further the designated communities' clean energy goals.

Green Communities commit to reducing municipal energy consumption by 20 percent over five years. Across the state, these savings will total enough energy to heat and power nearly 17,000 homes. The reduction in greenhouse gas emissions will be comparable to taking 39,000 cars off the road.

Other southeast Massachusetts communities that went green this year include Norwell, Stoughton, Weymouth and Whitman.

There are 155 municipalities across the state participating.

The next round of grant funding starts in the fall. At $250,000, it's a more competitive grant, but Joyce and the commission are hopeful that those funds can be secured so that Cohasset can convert its streetlights to similar, energy-efficient, long-lasting LED bulbs.

To do that, Cohasset has to purchase the streetlights from the utility. National Grid and the town did not agree on the number of streetlights in town and had to send out a contractor to determine the true number.

Now, the parties have agreed on the number of streetlights to be purchased and have worked out an arrangement for National Grid to repair – and reimburse the town for – 88 non-functioning streetlights discovered during the assessment.

Cohasset's Town Counsel has reviewed the purchase and sale agreement. Town officials are awaiting National Grid's response, which Joyce anticipates will come sometime in July.

Demas takes the helm

Will serve as interim superintendent as search begins

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

With little fanfare, Louise Demas stepped into her new role as interim superintendent with the ease of someone stepping into their own familiar living room after a long, hard day at work.

"It felt very comfortable," Demas said after her first School Committee meeting as superintendent. "I've been in the district enough, and been to the School Committee enough, that I feel like we already have a great relationship."

Demas officially takes over the superintendent role for Barbara Cataldo as of Friday, July 1. Cataldo announced on April 6 that she was retiring so she could spend more time with family and care for her aging parents. She was hired in 2011.

Educated at the University of Maine and Bridgewater State University, Demas has served the district since 2008, wearing several hats during that time. Her duties as Assistant Superintendent of Curriculum, Instruction, and Assessment will have to be delegated while she is serving as superintendent, and she believes she's found the woman to do it in Sue Skeiber.

"The hectic part is trying to do both jobs right now," Demas said. "It's crunch-time for grants, licensure, and hiring. I've definitely hit the ground running."

But, she said, the busy transition has nonetheless felt natural. "Because I know quite a bit of the background, it makes the job a lot easier. Things are going smoothly."

One of Demas's first tasks was to help hire a new principal for Osgood School. That search has been completed; Principal Lisa Farrell officially starts on July 1.

Over the summer, Demas said her first priority is to wrap up hiring; second is to familiarize herself with the contracts. She'll also be working with administrators to finalize the strategic plan for the district and making plans for professional development in the fall.

In September, the School Committee will assemble a search team and community focus groups so that anyone who wants to assist in the search for a permanent superintendent can get involved.

Demas's tenure as interim could last for up to a year while the search is ongoing. She has not yet decided whether she will apply for the permanent role, but she definitely plans to finish out her career in Cohasset.

"I love Cohasset," said Demas. "I love districts where parents are involved. I have loved this district since the moment I walked in here."

chat sessions for parents over the summer so that people can start putting a face to the name and voice their concerns.

Farrell said her role, for now, is simply to offer thoughts and suggestions from a different perspective while building on the successes of past administrators. For example, she did her homework on the highly successful Positive Behavioral Interventions and Supports program adopted this past year and hopes to continue on a strong trajectory.

"I know that's something they're very proud of," Farrell said.

One change she'll probably make right away? Look for two big baskets in her office, filled with the latest and greatest of children's literature, divided up by reading level.

"I have a definite passion for reading," Farrell said. "I wasn't a strong reader in elementary school; it kicked in later, in high school. For kids who don't like to read, the library can be too overwhelming."

Before retiring Principal Bob LeCount moved out of his office, the first thing in the room to catch Farrell's eye was a bright yellow hat, which LeCount used to wear when he pretended to be the Man in the Yellow Hat from the Curious George books.

"That's the way you get kids into it!" said Farrell. "You have to bring it alive for them."

Exposure and access are keys, as well, she said. Having plenty of books around to choose from and giving kids opportunities to talk about them both in and out of the classroom can make reading less scary for struggling readers.

Kids (and parents) loved the personal connection LeCount had with his students, and that won't be going away. LeCount made a point of knowing each student's name and one fact about them. Farrell described a similar goal.

"As the year goes on, I want to learn their names and who their friends are," she said. "When someone greets you by name, it makes you feel proud; you know that you're recognized."

That relationship starts first thing in the morning on the first day of school — and every day of school. At her previous schools, Farrell made a point of greeting students as they arrived in the morning, having a presence at lunchtime, and bidding students goodbye at the end of the day.

"My door is always open," said Farrell, "but that's not enough. They should know who I am."

Farrell is coming off a one-year stint as principal of Stoughton's West Elementary School, serving pre-K through fifth-grade students. Prior to that, she spent eight years as principal of the Henri A. Yelle Elementary School — a much smaller school in Norton, which served grades four and five.

"I wanted to try out the big city, but I found out that I liked the smaller-town feel," Farrell said.

Prior to working in Norton, she spent five years as the Title I coordinator and curriculum coordinator for the city of Taunton, two years as a reading specialist in Easton, and 14 years as a classroom teacher and reading specialist in Pembroke. She hopes to spend the rest of her career in Cohasset.

"She's got quite some experience and she's very personable," said Louise Demas, interim superintendent for Cohasset schools.

Administrators initially anticipated that they would hire an interim principal as a means of buying time for a lengthy search. However, Demas reported that Farrell had been appointed to a permanent position, not just for the next year, and there would be no ongoing search.

Demas said that the new principal would be put straight to work, interviewing candidates for a full-time kindergarten position and a long-term sub for a second-grade classroom.

Other summer projects will include getting familiar with the curriculum and building — "so I don't get lost!" joked Farrell — coordinating with the administrative team, working on the strategic and school improvement plans, and hopefully, meeting some students and parents, both through her scheduled "principal chats" and simply by virtue of being in the building during Recreation camp hours.

This adjustment period is the hardest phase of the job, said Farrell, but she knows it'll all be worth it.

"I'm going to make this place a home," she said. "Even though she'll be commuting from Easton, when you spend seven to eight hours a day in a place, those people become your family."

CONSERVATORY NOTES

Celtic Sojourn: Roots and Branches concert

By Christine Hedden

When South Shore Conservatory welcomed me to their faculty last year, I shared my personal musical journey with the Hingham Journal community. I talked about growing up in the New England tradition, playing folk tunes with my father, and eventually falling in love with Irish traditional music and fiddle playing. It is still my passion today. Imagine my delight to be invited to play fiddle at a very special Celtic event coming to the conservatory's Evenings Under the Stars outdoor concert series on July 16: A Celtic Sojourn: Roots and Branches Concert, featuring host and WGBH radio personality Brian O'Donovan!

For those of you who may not know him, Brian O'Donovan is a central figure in the Celtic traditional music scenes of Boston. You may hear his voice on 89.7 WGBH every Saturday afternoon at 3 p.m., catch one of his concerts as part of the Burren Backroom Series on a Wednesday evening, or share a pint with him at any one of the many Irish traditional music seisiúns around town. In all of his work, Brian speaks to the heart of traditional music — that is, community.

Where can you find this community? Walk into an Irish traditional music seisiún at The Druid in Cambridge or The Burren Somerville. At first, the scene may appear a little mysterious. Most likely, there will be a few fiddles, an accordion, a flute and (if you're lucky) an uilleann piper. A few beers will be scattered on a table in the midst this musical circle, alongside a few phones and cakes of roisin. The musicians might be playing, laughing or talking. There will be friends listening nearby, perhaps a few dancers will join hands and form a set later on in the night. Musicians, dancers and listeners — lovers of traditional music all — gather here to share in this love together. This experience of community is common to many varieties of traditional music, from Irish to Klezmer. It's a bond that goes beyond shared tastes — this community feels like a family.

What I admire most in Brian O'Donovan's A Celtic Sojourn concerts is that he brings together musicians and performers from a variety of Celtic traditions. While Irish, Scottish and Cape Breton music may sound similar, each tradition has its own specialized repertoire and its own vibrant community. His A Celtic Sojourn program creates a beautiful blending of these many communities. In addition to highlighting key performers from different Celtic musics, such as 2015 World Irish Dancing Championship winners The Miller Family, guitarist Robbie O'Connell with fiddler Rose Clancy, Cat in the Moon, flutist/vocalist Nuala Kennedy with guitarist John Doyle, and Piper Joey Abarta, the upcoming performance at South Shore Conservatory will feature participation of Conservatory fiddle students Nadia Doyle, Patricia Breen and Tess Murphy.

The Conservatory is overjoyed to be taking part in this spectacular event and honored to welcome you into this celebration of music as community. Please join us!

Now in its 20th anniversary year, South Shore Conservatory's Evenings Under the Stars Saturday night concert series presents A Celtic Sojourn: Roots and Branches Concert on Saturday, July 16 at the Jane Carr Amphitheater, One Conservatory Drive in Hingham. Tickets may be purchased at: sscmusic.org/evenings_under_the_stars.html or by calling 781-749-7565, ext. 22.

Connecticut carillonneur featured at St. Stephen's

The St. Stephen's Summer Carillon Series continues this coming Sunday, July 3 at 6 p.m. with a recital performed by David Maker, Carillonneur-in-Residence at Storrs Congregational Church in Connecticut. Originally a percussionist and keyboard player, Mr. Maker assumed stewardship of the Storrs carillon in 1994, performing, teaching, and undertaking many public relations initiatives. From 2007 to 2009 he also served as Carillonneur of Trinity College in Hartford, Connecticut.

The carillon is an instrument of bells that, being mounted on a frame, are able to produce sounds that range from the quietest whisper to the loudest gong.

John Whiteside, Carillonneur at St. Stephen's Church, says that "Carillons are simply amazing. They were designed to be instruments that are rhythmically exacting, and because of that can perform complex music so that it sounds just great."

The bells of the carillon are held stationary in a frame and are played from a keyboard that employs a mechanism that strikes the bells from the inside.

"It is amazing how the carillon works," says Whiteside. "It has a range equal to that of a piano, and when played well sounds just amazing."

The St. Stephen's Carillon Series has been presenting recitals continuously every summer since 1923. Recitalists are invited to play from all over the world, and represent the best performers that can be heard.

The carillon offers the town of Cohasset something that very few places in the United States have. Carillons are, by their nature, public instruments — a bell that weighs over five tons, like the lowest bell in the tower at St. Stephen's Church, will play quite loudly and sound for some time. But since they are so musical, they are also fun to listen to, and when you hear them you know you are hearing something that is both unique and beautiful.

Recitals are held for eight Sunday evenings at 6 o'clock. Bring a picnic and sit on the Cohasset Town Common and enjoy what you hear. Or come sit in the courtyard behind St. Stephen's Church, where the bells sound more loudly because you are closer to them. All are welcome, both young and old. The bells have been ringing from St. Stephen's for 92 years, and form a part of the continuous tapestry and long history that make our town unique.

PUSHING THE EDGE

We hold these truths to be self-evident ...

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness."

This has been called "one of the best-known sentences in the English language." It is widely regarded as a moral standard to which the United States should strive. The term unalienable is not commonly used in normal discourse. In this sentence it is meant to convey that government did not grant these rights nor can government take them away. Originally drafted by Thomas Jefferson, the Declaration of Independence was adopted by the Second Continental Congress 340 years ago in Philadelphia. Over the years the meaning of the famous sentence has been debated by politicians. It has been used as a cornerstone of many social changes.

Lincoln opened his Gettysburg Address with "Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent, a new nation, conceived in Liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal."

In 1963 Martin Luther King Jr. referenced the sentence in his "I have a dream" speech.

"When the architects of our republic wrote the magnificent words of the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence, they were signing a promissory note to which every American was to fall heir. This note was a promise that all men, yes, black men as well as white men, would be guaranteed the 'unalienable Rights' of 'Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.'"

In 1848, the first Woman's Rights Convention was held in Seneca Falls, New York. The convention members sought social and political equality for women. Their motto was that "All men and women are created equal" and the convention demanded suffrage for women. It wasn't until the ratification of the 19th amendment in 1920 that all American women were guaranteed the right to vote. But, it wasn't until the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment 1972 that discrimination based on sex was written into the Constitution.

"Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex."

More recently in 2015 the Supreme Court ruled that the denial of marriage licenses to same-sex couples and the refusal to recognize those marriages performed in other jurisdictions violates the Due Process and the Equal Protection clauses of the Fourteenth Amendment.

So in 2016 as we attend local parades, watch fireworks and enjoy outdoor barbecues, we should pause to remember the impact that one sentence written 340 years ago has had on our pursuit of happiness. Although we may have unalienable rights, we continue as a work in progress in understanding and realizing those rights. Our political leaders should remember this as the moral standard to which we should all strive.

Cohasset Interviews Their Animal Control Officer...

COMMENTARY

Eighth-grade teams tackle tough subject

By Christine Murphy

Our kids are listening and hearing our message about substance use! This year five eighth-grade teams (25 percent of the grade) in the Cohasset Middle High School selected, "How to keep Cohasset teens from using drugs and alcohol" as the topic for their independent research projects. I was privileged to be invited to view their final presentations and was very impressed with the insights that were shared by the teams. By comparison, one team addressed substance use in 2015. Progress! Their eyes and ears are open.

The five teams utilized divergent resources including interviews with a young woman in the throes of substance use disorder and interviews with two subject matter experts, Sergeant Lopes, the School Resource Officer and with Mr. Ford, the Athletic Director. They also utilized information from very prominent sites like NIDA, Drug-free.org and Safe Harbor Cohasset (plug). Several cited Drug Story Theater as a source.

The information was right on and the presentations were well choreographed and professionally delivered. I applaud these teams and Mrs. Cerutti, the school librarian for elevating this challenging topic.

The insights that were imparted were particularly telling. In summary, the teams noted the following causal factors of underage drug and alcohol use: relaxed marijuana laws leading to favorable views on drug use, lack of positive parental role modeling, lax family supervision, boredom, social media glamorization, parental views on marijuana and friend's use of drugs. From the mouths of babes!

As parents and caregivers, the good news is that we can make a positive impact on all of the issues they identified.

We can vote against the recreational marijuana ballot question in the November. We can remind ourselves that our children look up to us and emulate our every move. As parents, we need to role model positive behavior. I encourage us to think about the contradiction of "do as we say, not as we do" and the frustration that caused us when we were adolescents.

As for lax supervision, a comment was made that just because we are old enough to be left alone, we shouldn't be. That was an eye-opener. Lesson learned. An after-school or summer job will certainly counteract boredom and instill discipline and responsibility. We all did it.

To neutralize the social media impact, let's try to make the time to have constant open conversations with our children about our expectations and the long term consequences of underage substance use.

We can also discover a lot by monitoring social media engagement.

I would encourage us all to espouse strong views against marijuana usage and reinforce them every chance we get. Research has proven that both marijuana and alcohol have a negative effect on the teen brain which does not mature until the age of 25. By keeping a close eye on our children's choice of friends, we can help mitigate long term problems. As you can see there are solutions to the issues the teens identified and many of them were recounted by them.

I am not an expert by any measure. In this case, I believe our children are. Let's listen to what they have to say and remember they are listening to and watching our every move! Let's give them the right cues! Let's not let them down.

—Christine Murphy is chairwoman of Safe Harbor Cohasset Coalition.

GROWING ON THE FARM

Summer time, now what do I do?

It is hot and dry. There is no hurry to the bus stop. The lazy, hazy days are here. The assigned reading book can wait until later.

The tomatoes are not on the vine yet. The garlic scapes, though, are ready for cutting. These gangly, curly out shoots from the top of the garlic plant are great for a garlic scape soup or scape pesto, terrific for dipping. When the scapes are cut off the top, then the garlic plant will put more energy into the bulb and cloves that remain in the ground.

The entire garlic plant will be pulled in mid-July, when it most likely will still be hot, dry and maybe humid. But for now, the garlic is a nice, spicy treat to keep us busy. There are garlic plants at over 30 school farm gardens in the greater South Shore. That means that many people have the chance to try something new, as well as perhaps cook some garlic bread come autumn, when school is back in session.

Once the garlic is pulled, the plants can dry and be cured, so as to last longer. Cloves will be separated for new fall planting and roasting. Having been planted in October and November of last year, they are a long lasting crop that increases from its one clove to a spring bounty of scapes and big heads of garlic.

Much like a student who enters school in the fall, he or she emerges the following June perhaps a bit wiser, taller and ready to learn more. And as the garlic is ready for harvest, so too is the farmer ready to keep on planting. There are carrot seeds for fall that can be directly sowed right now. There are lettuce, kale and arugula seed to also sow.

Some tall tomatoes and peppers are bursting out of their pots for a chance to produce in a larger space. Beans, cucumbers and sunflowers still have time to germinate, grow and produce lovely beans, potential pickles and sunny cheer before the frost grows in October or even November. So now we are encouraged to hurry up and wait.

It is summer. Weeds will grow and so will we. We can read a book, write in a journal, listen to the birds, try a spicy scape or just escape into the blue sky days, waiting for a spot of rain to make things grow.

LETTER

A wise vote with much at stake environmentally

Our Town reached a tipping point Wednesday night, June 21, when the Cohasset Conservation Commission held its seventh lengthy meeting to again consider the proposed development of James Island in Inner Little Harbor.

The serious implications of this issue were evident by the teams of lawyers, engineering consultants, environmental experts and the many neighbors who attended.

Well-prepared presentations and the re-examination of the development proposal from all angles were conducted in an orderly manner. And this Con Com hearing did not hide the impact of the issues at stake for our beautiful Cohasset.

The question addressed by the five Con Com members was, "Do we, because of legally expensive pressure from the applicants, start to force serious exceptions to the restraints imposed by the Cohasset Wetlands Bylaw that our Town passed, and we have lived with for many years.

The first Con Com hearing adjudicated and answered conclusively by a 4-2 vote in favor of upholding our wetlands bylaws, after four long meetings in the summer and fall of 2015. Never before has a second vote been held which expresses how fundamental these issues have become as a result of the availability of town sewer capacity.

The vote was to again to not grant exceptions to the town's well-thought-out bylaw, thereby prohibiting further erosion of the natural heritage, which brings many taxpaying newcomers to our town.

Without the environmental beauty of this town we could not afford the school system we have.

HISTORY

The Declaration of Independence

When in the Course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security.—Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his Assent to Laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his Assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public Records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the Legislative powers, incapable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise; the State remaining in the mean time exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavoured to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the Laws for Naturalization of Foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migrations hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands.

He has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary powers.

He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, Standing Armies without the Consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to the Civil power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his Assent to their Acts of pretended Legislation:

For Quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:

For protecting them, by a mock Trial, from punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States:

For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world:

For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent:

For depriving us in many cases, of the benefits of Trial by Jury:

For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offences

For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighbouring Province, establishing therein an Arbitrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies:

For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws, and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Governments:

For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated Government here, by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our Coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large Armies of foreign Mercenaries to compleat the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of Cruelty & perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow Citizens taken Captive on the high Seas to bear Arms against their Country, to become the executioners of their friends and Brethren, or to fall themselves by their Hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavoured to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian Savages, whose known rule of warfare, is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

In every stage of these Oppressions We have Petitioned for Redress in the most humble terms: Our repeated Petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A Prince whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have We been wanting in attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which, would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our Separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War, in Peace Friends.

We, therefore, the Representatives of the united States of America, in General Congress, Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the Name, and by Authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be Free and Independent States; that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as Free and Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do. And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.

CANDIDATE ANNOUNCEMENT

Cook running for State Senate

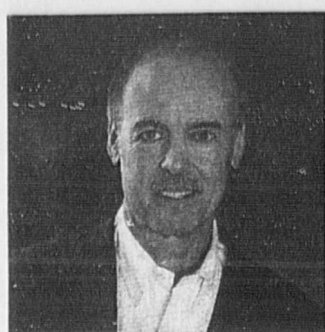

Duxbury Democrat Brian Cook announced he is running for State Senator representing the eight-town Plymouth and Norfolk district.

I am running for State Senator because I believe that I am the one candidate that has a proven track record of helping to improve the many communities and organizations throughout our district, together with the background and understanding of all the towns of our South Shore.

Whether it's been my involvement in community projects in the towns of Weymouth, Duxbury, Hingham and Marshfield, or the work I have done on behalf of small businesses and local organizations throughout our district, I have been an active partner and supporter of all our communities and

I believe that I will best represent the interests of all of our residents as your State Senator.

I also believe that I am the Democrat who can win in November. I was born and raised in Weymouth, and have never stopped being actively involved. I have also worked in Hingham for over 6 years and my family has lived in Duxbury for 20 years. I know our whole district because I have been a part of our whole district.

As I travel throughout our South Shore in the coming months, I look forward to talking with you, and your family, about the concerns and expectations you have for your State Senator. I also hope to earn your vote in the upcoming Democratic Primary, Thursday, Sept. 8.

CANDIDATE ANNOUNCEMENT

Meschino in race for State Senate

Hull Democrat Joan Meschino officially announced her candidacy for the State Senate representing the Plymouth and Norfolk District, in the new primary election Sept. 8. She is continuing her race for the office vacated last winter by former Sen. Robert Hedlund and now held by Sen. Patrick O'Connor, R-Weymouth.

"The office of state senator provides great opportunities to benefit our district," Meschino said. "We need to address the many immediate issues facing our district and commonwealth, as well as plan for the South Shore's future and take steps to meet the challenges ahead. I'm running so that the South Shore will have a strong advocate and an effective leader. I want to make this office work for the benefit of our region again, consistent with the progressive values of the Democratic Party."

"In my earlier campaign this spring, I met and reconnected with so many concerned and forward-looking people. I've heard what's on their minds. I understand what we need to do together to reach our regional goals and take full advantage of the opportunities ahead. I'm eager to get going"

Meschino highlighted several issues on which she is prepared to work with local officials and legislative colleagues.

These include: prevention of gun violence; the opioid addiction crisis; the need to meet our state's commitments to reduce the use of fossil fuels; the safety and condition of our roads and bridges; economic development to grow local jobs; and protections against negative impacts to our environment, such as those caused by the proposed fracked gas compressor station in Weymouth and airplane noise.

"We need to plan for the future, too," said Meschino, noting she will advocate for expanding commuter boat, train and local bus services; for early education for all Massachusetts children; and for preparing our communities and infrastructure to withstand the effects of future climate change.

Meschino has broad experience in government service. She has served as a local official (Hull selectman); on the leadership of a large, regional board, (Metropolitan Area Planning Council); on statewide commissions (Metropolitan Beaches Commission); and as executive director of a public interest, non-profit organization concerned with public policy, including legislation supporting access to equal opportunity and public education (Massachusetts Appleseed Center for Law and Justice).

For a more full description of her service, qualifications, and policy positions, visit Joanforsenate.com or her Facebook page, Joanforsenate.

HARSHER PENALTIES FOR SOLICITATION OF A FELONY CRIME (H 4005)

House 156-0, approved and sent to the Senate a bill that would tie the penalty for solicitation of a felony crime to the penalty for committing the actual crime itself. Under current law, solicitation of a felony can only be charged as a misdemeanor, with no distinction made for the seriousness of the crime solicited. The current penalty can be no more than 2.5 years in a house of correction.

Supporters said it is outrageous that the penalty for soliciting someone to commit a murder provides no greater punishment than soliciting someone to alter the vehicle identification number on a car. They pointed to a case in which a person hired someone to kill his wife and only faced 2.5 years in jail. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill.)

$50 MILLION TO COMMUNITIES FOR SMALL BRIDGE REPAIRS (H 4424)

House 156-0, approved and sent to the Senate an $800 million package for transportation projects across the state. The package includes $750 million for highway improvements and $50 million for a new grant program to fund the repair of cities' and towns' bridges that are 20 or fewer feet in length.

Supporters said the bill would fund critical improvements to highways throughout the state. They noted the $50 million for bridge repairs would go directly to cities and towns in need of funds to repair bridges that are crumbling.

ALLOW MORE CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS (H 542)

House 151-0, approved and sent to the Senate a bill that would allow donors to contribute the maximum $1,000 twice per year to a candidate who runs for the Legislature in a special election and a regular election in the same year. Current law only allows donors to give a maximum of $1,000 in any calendar year.

Supporters said it is unfair for a candidate who runs in a special election and then runs for re-election in the same year to be limited to $1,000 per donor for the entire year. They argued current law gives an advantage to some candidates who are only running in the regular election.

DISCLOSE TOP FIVE DONORS (H 543)

House 146-10, approved and sent to the Senate a bill that would require the names of the top five contributors who donate over $5,000 to a super Political Action Committee (PAC) and other groups or political committees to be listed on all campaign billboards and mailers. Current law requires the listing of the top five donors only on television, Internet and print ads.

Super PACs are created to help candidates and are often run by the candidate's former staffers or associates who use the PAC to fund positive ads about the candidate and/or run negative ads against the candidate's opponents. There is a limit on how much money can be donated to a candidate's own election committee but super PACs can legally accept unlimited donations.

Supporters said this will increase transparency and allow more voters to see who is funding these influential PACs. They said it will shine the light on this "dark" money.

Opponents said the bill does not go far enough on several counts to make true campaign finance reforms. They noted it still allows unions to contribute excessive money to campaigns.

ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL

INFORMATION ABOUT BREAST RECONSTRUCTION SURGERY (H 3699) - The House gave initial approval to a bill requiring all facilities that provide mastectomy surgery, lymph node dissection or a lumpectomy to provide specific information to the patient in writing prior to the patient giving consent to the procedure. The information would include the advantages and disadvantages of various reconstructive options and the coverage of these surgeries under private and state-funded health insurance.

ASSISTANCE TO FAMILIES OF MURDER VICTIMS (S 851) - The Judiciary Committee gave a favorable report to legislation that would create the Murder Victims Families Assistance Fund to provide aid to immediate families of murder victims. The fund would be funded by voluntary contributions from publishers, authors and movie or television studios that create books, movies or television shows based on murders committed in the Bay State.

DIVERSIONARY PROGRAMS INSTEAD OF PRISON (H 1463) - The House gave initial approval to legislation that would allow persons of any age convicted of certain crimes to be eligible to be placed in a diversionary program instead of prison. Current law allows this only for persons ages 18-21.

These programs provide first-time nonviolent offenders the chance to participate in a program that would help them instead of being prosecuted through the court process.

PROPERTY TAX EXEMPTION FOR VOLUNTEER FIREFIGHTERS (S 1537) - The House gave initial approval to a Senate-approved measure allowing local cities and towns to give a property tax exemption to volunteer, call or auxiliary firefighters or emergency medical technicians.

Supporters said these people work hard without pay and local communities should have the right to offer them property tax relief.

SHOOTING AT A HOUSE OR APARTMENT (H 4314) - The House gave initial approval to a bill imposing up to a 5-year prison sentence and/or $10,000 fine on anyone who hits any dwelling with an assault weapon, firearm, large capacity weapon, machine gun, rifle, sawed-off shotgun or shotgun.

REPEAL ARCHAIC LAWS (H 4392) - The House gave initial approval to a bill abolishing some archaic laws that are still on the books in Massachusetts. These laws include requiring that portions of the bible be read in public schools; declaring that the Communist Party is a subversive organization and prohibiting adultery, anal sex, blasphemy and vagabonds.

ARCHITECT LAUREATE (H 4401) - The House gave initial approval to a bill that would create the position of Architect Laureate of the Commonwealth. The architect laureate would serve a two-year term and would advocate for the physical, historic and aesthetic nature of the statehouse and other architecturally significant public buildings in the state. The unpaid position would be filled by gubernatorial appointment. A laureate is a person who has been honored for achieving distinction in a particular field or with a particular award.

HOW LONG WAS LAST WEEK'S SESSION? Beacon Hill Roll Call tracks the length of time that the House and Senate were in session each week. Many legislators say that legislative sessions are only one aspect of the Legislature's job and that a lot of important work is done outside of the House and Senate chambers. They note that their jobs also involve committee work, research, constituent work and other matters that are important to their districts. Critics say that the Legislature does not meet regularly or long enough to debate and vote in public view on the thousands of pieces of legislation that have been filed. They note that the infrequency and brief length of sessions are misguided and lead to irresponsible late night sessions and a mad rush to act on dozens of bills in the days immediately preceding the end of an annual session.

During the week of June 20-24, the House met for a total of nine hours and nine minutes and the Senate met for a total 33 minutes.

SELECTMEN

Ten-month road closure too long

Public safety, traffic concerns raised in letter to MassDOT

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

Selectmen don't think they're looking a gift horse in the mouth by writing MassDOT about their concerns about the Cunningham Bridge reconstruction. Because they don't see the bridge as a gift horse at all.

The board reviewed an early draft of the letter June 22.

"It's very nice that the state is coming forward to fix the bridge," said Selectman Steve Gaumer, "but this is not a gift and it's not free money. It's our money, and we just happen to get to say hello to it in our lifetime."

On the other hand, said Chairman Kevin McCarthy, "They've been cooperative; I don't like to push further."

While MassDOT has listened and responded to many of Cohasset's concerns, offering alternative railings and compromising on the curve radius, the board's biggest worry still remains: to shut down that bridge for 10 months or more poses a public safety concern they said they can't ignore.

DOT considered a phased construction plan with only a single lane closure as well as the construction of a temporary bypass bridge. Both alternatives were deemed unfeasible due to site constraints and cost.

Selectwoman Diane Kennedy said she'd like to see those options anyway, including the cost.

Gaumer added that wetland permits are already required for this project, so maybe it's possible to tack on the additional permits required to build a temporary roadway, even if it means some out-of-pocket expense for the town. But that route would probably require further land-taking and further permits.

Still, if you never ask, you'll never know, and that was the board's guiding philosophy in writing the letter.

"We shouldn't be afraid of conflict," said Selectman Jack Keniley. "I know it's uncomfortable to ask for things like this, but we need to take care of ourselves."

"When the commuter rail came through, we asked for a whistle stop and platform in the village," Gaumer said. "We were told it couldn't be done, and we gave up. Hingham asked for a tunnel and no one thought it could happen, but they got it."

This time, Gaumer said he doesn't want to give up on the town's best interests quite so fast. If he could have his way, the bridge would only be out for three months, which was the initial estimate for this project, before MassDOT realized the poor condition of abutments would require those to be reconstructed as well.

During public comment, resident Ralph Dormitzer said he thought that the state would be receptive.

"I was at the meetings, and there were many who were very sympathetic to our cause," Dormitzer said. "They've made concessions already. I think this group will listen."

Dormitzer wondered if the abutments really needed to be rebuilt now that the town had convinced DOT not to change the curve radius or widen the roadway by more than a foot.

Dormitzer certainly didn't see the benefit of cutting up the rocks around the bridge's base to replace them with abutments. On top of the time it adds to the project, there's local usage to be considered.

Cunningham Bridge, Atlantic Avenue, is slated to be replaced once design issues and length of time the bridge will be out of service can be worked out. WICKED LOCAL PHOTO / CHRIS BERNSTEIN

"This is a recreational place," Dormitzer said. "There are fishermen who go down there every day. They're changing the character of the community if they do a bridge that's entirely utilitarian and neglect the uses of everyday people. We lose that, and we lose a piece of Cohasset that we can never recover."

Resident Mike Sardina said he thought the letter needed to be stronger. "If they don't have to rebuild the road," he said, "then they don't need to build 300 feet of retaining walls. Those are eliminating trees and impeding access to the water."

These concerns were taken consideration, but selectmen said it was best to keep the letter simple and focused on four main points --public safety, traffic impact, environmental considerations, and context-sensitive design.

The final draft is due at the board's next meeting July 5.

BRADLEY

leadership team, will remain as state rep until the legislative session wraps up July 31.

There won't be a special election before the Sept. 8 state primary for that reason.

"My staff will handle constituent work in the meantime," Bradley said.

His resignation, following 16 years in that position, opens up a South Shore House seat. Bradley represents five Hingham precincts, Cohasset, Hull, and one Scituate precinct.

The State House News Service reported that Bradley had earlier planned to seek a ninth term to the Third Plymouth District seat and is the sole candidate on the ballot for either party.

"Voters will either write-in [their candidate] of choice, or candidates might be selected through local caucuses," Bradley said. "The voters will decide who will fill the position."

According to spokesman Brian McNiff in the Secretary of State's office, Bradley's name will be the only one on the Sept. 8 primary ballot. There will also be a line for write-in candidates.

There is already speculation that Hingham Selectman Paul Gannon, who ran in the special senate primary election in April -- losing to Hull Democrat Joan Meschino, could launch a write-in campaign. Gannon, who served as a state representative in South Boston in the 1990s, said he wasn't sure what he might do.

"I haven't had time to think about it," he said. "I'll take a good look at the process and see what it involves, and see who else is out there."

"If Bradley wins the nomination, however, he would presumably withdraw and must do so by Sept. 13 at noon," McNiff said.

The vacancy would be filled by an executive committee determined by the Democratic State Committee and that would have to be filed with the Secretary of State's office by 5 p.m., Sept. 14, McNiff said. The candidate selected by the committee would be on the ballot in the Nov. 8 election and if elected would serve a two-year term starting in January.

Bradley said he is overwhelmed by the support he has experienced from his constituents in the district and grateful for the opportunity to serve them in the legislature.

Bradley, who announced his decision June 27, said he has been considering this move for the past several weeks after conversations with the law firm, his family, and friends.

"It's bittersweet to be leaving, but this opportunity that presented itself about six to eight weeks ago -- will require a significant amount of travel out of the state and the country for the balance of the legislative year and for the foreseeable future," Bradley said. "It wouldn't be fair to my constituents [to remain in this seat] while in this new position."

Among the highlights of his career were working on the passage of the autism insurance law that provides access to health insurance coverage for children so affected; working on the recent passage of the domestic violence bill, which is stricter on offenders; and recent gun legislation that he said "keeps guns out of the hands of people with mental illness, with the authority to enforce such regulations remaining with local police chiefs."

Former Sen. Robert Hedlund, who also resigned from the legislature this year after being elected mayor of Weymouth, was taken aback by Bradley's decision to step down.

"The timing is quite a surprise, right after the filing deadline [for the state primary]. It's going to make for an interesting process."

Hedlund, who served as senator for 22 years, said he found working with Bradley a good experience.

"We didn't vote alike, but we worked well together on constituent cases," Hedlund said.

He recalls working with Bradley to resolve some of Hull's issues with the Department of Conservation and Recreation, from land swaps and beach staffing to police patrols and a long-term lease for the Carousel.

Hedlund wasn't the only one caught by surprise. Cohasset Selectmen Chairman Kevin McCarthy said that no one saw Bradley's change of trajectory coming.

"We will all miss Garrett Bradley's outstanding service to the town of Cohasset and throughout the 3rd Plymouth district," said McCarthy, who described the state rep as a man of compassion, sincerity, integrity, and good humor.

"In his 16 years as a State Representative Garrett not only worked very hard for his constituents, but he continually grew in stature and influence within state government, which made him a particularly valuable resource and representative," McCarthy said.

"Garrett was always available 24 hours 7 days a week in service of his constituents," said McCarthy, who recalled finding a strong supporter in Bradley during the process of amending Cohasset's Town Manager Act.

"If we had to call Garrett, he either answered the phone himself or got back to us within five minutes," McCarthy recalled. "He was on top of what we needed and really made it happen. He will be sorely missed."

NDA star Charlotte Allard ready for next adventure at North Carolina

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset's Charlotte Allard had a great career at Notre Dame Academy, and her senior season was no different.

When all was said and done, Notre Dame Academy finished with a 16-4 record and individually she scored 114 goals with 30 assists and picked up awards from The Boston Globe and ESPN

Boston.

Allard was named the Globe's Player of the Year, and was also ESPN Boston's 2016 Miss Lacrosse.

In her senior season, Allard, a midfielder, also had 55 ground balls and 87 draw controls. She finished her career with 252 goals and 61 assists.

Next year, Allard will venture south to play lacrosse at the University of North Carolina, the defending NCAA National Champion. "It feels awesome," Allard said about the accolades. "It's especially exciting

True thriller

Cohasset edged in eight innings

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

Win or lose, there most likely isn't anyone who can say that the Cohasset Little League Williamsport Tournament baseball team didn't keep everyone on the edge of their seats in a 4-3 eight-inning loss to Avon/Holbrook, Monday June 27 at Barnes Field.

Fortunately for Cohasset, this tournament is not one-and-done, and the team will be back in action Saturday July 2 in a noon matinee against Abington at Hanover's Forge Park.

The game truly was a thriller as Avon/Holbrook struck first with a run in the top of the first inning. Cohasset came back in the last of the second when Danny Talacci singles, advanced to third on a Matthew Keene single and stole home to tie the game.

Cohasset held the tie and then took a 3-1 lead in the fourth when Keene and Cam Albanese reached base and scored on a double by Justin Appleby.

Keene had an outstanding outing on the hill, striking out 11 in five strong innings, and Anthony Inferrera tossed three solid innings of relief, striking out three.

The sixth was a tough frame for Cohasset as the visitors scored twice to tie the game, and Cohasset couldn't answer, taking the game into extra innings, where Avon/Holbrook scored in the eighth on a solo homerun.

Cohasset wasn't done fighting though, and mounted a comeback try that ended with a pair of stranded runners in the last of the eighth.

Overall, Cohasset outthit Avon/Holbrook 10-5.

Cohasset head coach

Tony Talacci was pleased with the way his team played.

"The boys were focused and came ready to play," he said. "They put in a lot of practice time on the field and in the batting cages to prepare for this game. It showed. It was a well played game by both teams but, unfortunately, it came down to one pitch and one hit."

Talacci was also pleased with the support from

Scituate High School Youth Camp

Camp starts July 24

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

Scituate High School football coach Herb Devine will be hosting a Youth Football Camp with a bit of a twist, beginning Sunday July 24 through July 26 at Scituate High School.

The twist is a Sunday afternoon kickoff at 4 p.m. with afternoon sessions, rather than mornings.

The non-contact camp is open to boys and girls in grades 1-8.

"We'll have local high school coaches here this year and varsity high school players," Devine said. "We're open to boys and girls in grades 1-8 in any town. The camp is non-contact, no helmets. It should be a lot of fun and a good chance to learn new skills."

Devine said the camp will be geared to learning and is a good way for youth football players, including SciCoh players to get back into the swing of the game, and is also a good way for flag football players to learn a little more about the game.

Devine is looking forward to the camp.

"I'm excited," he said. "Camps are always fun for me. As a head coach there's so much to do with organizing, getting fields and paperwork. When I finally get on the field with the little guys and see their love of the game, it brings me back to why I love coaching."

The cost is $125.

knowing that all the work I've done has paid off. I really have to thank all the people who have helped me. My coach, Lucas Cash at Revolution Lacrosse (her longtime club team), Meredith Frank (NDA coach) and my teammates."

Allard has played with Revolution Lacrosse since sixth grade, and has teammates who play for this year's Division 2 South Sectional runner-up Cohasset.

"I have fun with Corey Golden and Kyle Burke," Allard said of Skippers who are friends. "It's fun to play them. It's a good rivalry, but I always want to win. Anytime you play your hometown you want to win."

Allard enjoyed playing at NDA, where she won a state title in her freshman year.

"It was a great experience," she said. "I love my team and a coach who loved us more than anything. We won a State Championship my freshman year. We had a great team that year. We had seven seniors on that team. It was amazing. After that we still had a group of

Looking toward next year, Allard is more than ready to start a college career.

"I can't wait to get there and be part of Carolina Country," she said. "I've been there and never wanted to leave."

She's not sure what she's going to major in, or where she'll play yet.

"Right now I'm thinking business," she said. "That could change. I'm hoping to play midfield next year, but I'll play anywhere they want to put me. I hope I'll play right away. I'm not sure. They just won a national championship. It's a dream to play there. I just have to keep working."

For the summer, Allard will work out, play some lacrosse and coach a club team in Boston.

"The kids are fourth grade to juniors," she said. "I love working with the kids. It is awesome. They really work hard and really want to be there. I love coaching."

One final thing she plans on doing next year is cheering on the Tar Heels basketball team.

"I've seen two games," she said. "One of them was against NC State. It was amazing. The place was out of control. I loved it."

While Cohasset came out on the wrong end, the team is ready for Saturday.

"The team is still very confident going into Saturday's game against Abington," Talacci said.

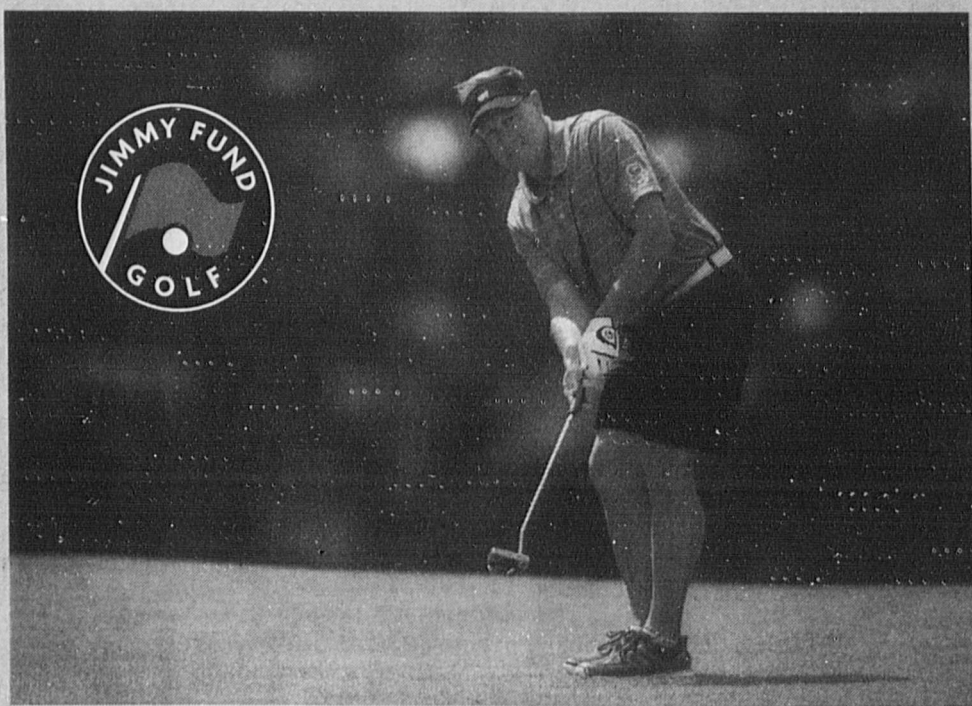

The game is at 12 noon and will be played at Forge Pond Park in Hanover.

On Sunday, July 3 at 7 a.m. St. Stephen's Church will celebrate the beginning of its seventh year of welcoming visitors and residents of all faiths to an informal Mass on Sandy Beach in Cohasset. Led by the Rev. Margot Critchfield, the service is followed by a "tailgating coffee hour" with donuts and coffee served by the pastor's husband from the back of his truck.

Arrive early enough, and your brain may still be as foggy as the seascape awaiting your arrival. Negotiate your way from the empty parking lot to the starkly deserted beach, and then slowly, intentionally, breathe in a few deep inhalations of sweet, salty air. As the sun begins to burn through the foggy mist, you'll see dogs playing at the water's edge and worshippers arriving in a steady stream: a growing crowd of casually clad people and clusters of smiling faces chatting quietly and welcoming each new arrival. Families stand around barefoot, children play in the sand, senior citizens relax in their folding chairs, zombie-like teenagers in pajama bottoms and t-shirts squint at the too bright sun.

The altar will catch your eye with its simple beauty. A stoneware communion set stands regally atop a white, cloth-covered card table; three large, pink conch shells pay homage before it. In the foreground, a driftwood cross, bits of sea glass and fishing net adorning its outstretched arms.

Someone smiles and hands you what looks like a menu—a laminated sheet of paper printed on both sides with the prayers for Holy Communion. "Good morning," he says, "we're glad you're here."

The service starts with a moment of silence in which to listen to the waves whispering in the distance. The wind brushes against your face and in the absence of human sound you notice with shared surprise the sudden awareness that this is amazing, this is breathtakingly beautiful, there is something going on here and whatever it is we're all feeling it: God is in this place. God's Spirit is in this gathering. We are about to break bread with Jesus on the beach!

A dog barks, a child coos something about her "doggie," and grinning widely, the priest extends her arms and says, "Blessed be God: Father, Son and Holy Spirit."

"And blessed be God's kingdom, now and forever," you respond with the others—and you know now that you are just exactly where you're meant to be.

—St. Stephen's invites everyone who hungers for God and seeks to know Jesus to join them for their informal Mass at Sandy Beach beginning Sunday, July 3 at 7 a.m. Pets are welcome. For more information call the church at 781-383-1083.

FARMERS MARKET

Good grill food sold here

By Michele Hubley

Time to Celebrate!

With the July 4th weekend upon us, Cohasset has much to celebrate. Last week's farmers market was one of them: the market celebrated the young Cohasset Farmers Market Scholarship winners Kyle Burke and Christian Hanke, as they officially opened the day.

Barbara Donahue, one of the volunteers each week at the market, commented about Burke and Hanke: "If the quality of our youth is represented in the qualities of these two young people we have here today, then we will be in good hands."

Before Burke and Hanke officially opened the market, they lent a hand to Brian Stewart and Mike Hubley, market manager, as they arranged the logistics for the day on the Common.

"A little bit goes a long way," remarked Hubley. "Young people may not realize they can have a big impact by giving just a little. It was terrific to see Kyle and Christian happy to be here with us today to help. They will go a long way in life with this sort of attitude."

Real Food is the Ingredient

Wondering what to have for this weekend's cook out? Check out the array of real foods available to you on the Common. Your local farms - Holly Hill, Cretinon's and Freitas - work hard to bring you their best each week, as seen by their tables laden with fresh, vibrantly colored produce.

Grab some fresh fish from Ray the Fish Guy, grass-fed steaks, burger, and chops from Chris at Double Z, or fresh, pasture-raised chickens from Josh at DaSilva Farms.

Don't forget the bread from French Memories, brought to you by the Launch program, or peanut butter chocolate chip delights from Spritzal Cookies, or salted caramels from Bradford Toffee. All real food, brought to you with pride. Celebration guaranteed!

The Sound of Music

From June 30th through August 11th, enjoy the sounds of music from the Common at 6 pm. As the market winds down on Thursday afternoons, the Cohasset Recreation Concert

Series kicks up!

Visit the Market Café before the Concert for a light dinner or snack: Southern BBQ, pizzas from Fire it up Flatbread, or swordfish skewers, chowder, and other prepared foods from Old Harbor Catering. Add Del's frozen specialties or enjoy a lavender-infused lemonade from JennyD's Bees. Nona's is ready and waiting when you are for their unbeatable homemade ice cream.

Life is good. Happy freedom of summer. Happy Fourth of July!

GIMME SHELTER

This Knight in shining fur will win you over

By Tammy Hatch

Meet Knight, a 1.5-year-old boy with black shiny fur and golden round eyes that glow. One of our newest arrivals, Knight really has it all - a super sweet personality, handsome looks and he's very friendly and engaging.

Knight's owner gave him up because she and her child chose to keep their newly acquired kitten when the landlord learned they had two cats in their small apartment instead of the one allowed. Knight was very sad and scared on arrival, missing the only people and home he had ever known. They say the eyes are the window to the soul and you can see in Knight's eyes how much he just wants to be a part of a family again and be loved.

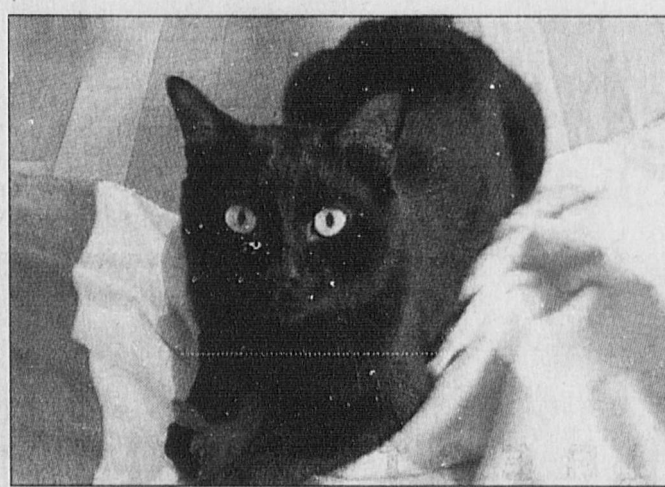

Knight is very playful and energetic, doesn't seem too bothered by the other cats and would probably do fine in a home with another easygoing feline. He'd also probably enjoy a large more spacious home to a smaller one as he's still young and has a lot of energy. Won't you come see for yourself what makes our Knight in shining armor so special?

You can learn more about Knight as well as the other cats and kittens we have available for adoption by visiting us online at hsar.org or by visiting us at our new location, 487 Nantasket Ave., Hull. Open hours are Monday nights, 6:30-7:30 p.m., and Saturdays, 2-3 p.m. If these times are not convenient for you, special appointments can be made by calling our adoption coordinator at 781-534-4902.

We are seeking hunky men to hold our precious kittens in our 10th anniversary calendar. If you think you have what it takes to volunteer your time and looks as a model for HSAR's 2017 Kittendales Calendar, please let us know! If you're interested, send a photo to kittendales@gmail.com and we will contact you if chosen. All proceeds from our calendar sales go to Hull Seaside Animal Rescue.

TRAFFIC SAFETY TIP OF THE WEEK

After a crash that involves utility poles or electrical wires the safest place is to remain inside your vehicle. Although our instinct is to get out as soon as possible after a crash, that can lead to electrocution. The only time you should step out before an emergency responder tells you it's safe is in case of a fire (which is rare). This is also dangerous for well-meaning bystanders who rush to help at a crash scene. They risk being electrocuted. This crash involving electrical wires occurred on Kilby St.

was reported on Forest Avenue. A caller reported a 13-year-old woman was missing. The caller reportedly called her friends and cellphone but the phone went straight to voicemail. She was last seen on Rocky Beach. The girl's bike was found on location. Officers reported that the girl was located and transported home.

Friday, June 24

11:37 a.m.: Property damage was reported on Locust Road. A caller reported a vehicle hit their wall and damaged the stone wall on the property. A caller believed it was a construction vehicle from a nearby site. Both parties were spoken to.

10:39 p.m.: A motor vehicle accident was reported on King Street. A caller reported a two-car accident with unknown injuries. One car was coming out of the Blue Mussel and then out of Avalon. Services were rendered.

Saturday, June 25

6:53 a.m.: An animal complaint was reported on Atlantic Avenue. A caller reported his dog ran off. The dog was described as a 1-year-old black Lab that answers to Lulu. The dog was wearing a red collar without tags.

8:52 a.m.: A dispute was reported on Locust Road. A caller reported a neighbor driving on her property with heavy equipment. Parties were spoken to.

11:30 a.m.: An animal complaint was reported on Jerusalem Road. A caller reported finding a dog with an electric collar on him. Services were rendered.

12:33 p.m.: Larceny was reported on Summer Street. Services were rendered.

5:58 p.m.: A disturbance was reported on Border Street. A gathering on bridge was dispersed.

Sunday, June 26

PUBLIC SAFETY

State Fire Marshal says leave fireworks to the professionals

Last Fourth of July weekend, two members of the National Football League demonstrated just how dangerous fireworks can be. Tampa Bay Buccaneers cornerback C. J. Wilson was forced to retire from a promising football career after losing two fingers from fireworks on the Fourth of July weekend. That same weekend, Giants defensive end Jason Pierre-Paul mangled his hand with fireworks. Both of these national athletes set a negative example for impressionable youth.

Closer to home, on July 4, 2015, the Saugus Fire Department was called to 7 Oak Point Road for a hand injury to a 23-year old man. The man was lighting off commercial and consumer grade fireworks in his backyard. An explosion injured his hand and he lost multiple fingers. He was med-flighted to Massachusetts General Hospital for surgery. A large cache of fireworks were discovered in a bedroom at the residence.

"This year, set a good example for your children and leave the fireworks to the professionals this Fourth of July holiday," said State Fire Marshal Peter J. Ostroskey.

On July 5, 2015, a 9-year-old boy from Boston received burns to 15 percent of his body surface area and lost one of his hands when the fireworks he was holding exploded in his hand. His 5-year-old male friend was also injured.

"Children imitate adults. If you use fireworks, children will copy you, not realizing how very dangerous fireworks are," Ostroskey said. Fifty-one percent of fireworks-related burn injuries reported by hospitals to the Office of the State Fire Marshal in the last 10 years (2006-2015) were to children under age 18. More than a quarter of the victims, (26 percent), were children under age 10.

Fourth of July no holiday for firefighters

Wellesley Fire Chief Rick DeLorie, president of the Fire Chiefs' Association of Massachusetts, said, "The Fourth of July holiday is a busy time for firefighters making sure the professional displays are conducted properly and are safe for the public; we're busy responding to all types of fires and medical emergencies," said Chief DeLorie. "In fact, the week of July 4 is one of the busiest times of the year for fires," he added.

Nearly 800 major fires and explosions from fireworks

In the past decade (2006-2015) there have been 775 major fire and explosion incidents involving illegal fireworks reported to the Massachusetts Fire Incident Reporting System (MFIRS). These 775 fires and explosions caused 11 civilian injuries, four fire service injuries, and an estimated dollar loss of $1.8 million. This is quite a substantial amount since most fireworks related fires are outside brush fires and do not usually have high loss figures.

■ On January 1, 2015 at 7:58 p.m., the Westfield Fire Department was called to a 1-acre grass fire in a farmer's field. The fire was started by fireworks. Crews were on scene for one hour.

■ On May 22, 2015, at 3:36 p.m., the Huntington Fire Department was called to a 3-acre brush fire started by fireworks. Firefighters were on scene for over three hours.

■ On June 27, 2015, at 6:11 p.m., the Brewster Fire Department was called to a 2-acre grass fire on Crosby Lane. The fire was started by fireworks. It took companies almost an hour and a half to extinguish the fire.

Majority of fireworks fires and injuries occurred during the week of the Fourth of July

■ On July 4, 2015, a 48-year old Boylston man received burns to his legs from fireworks at an (illegal) show at Lake Hiawatha in Blackstone, Mass. Empty mortar-style fireworks boxes were tossed into a bonfire after they were used. An unexploded one ignited and struck him in his legs.

■ On July 4, 2015, at 11:27 p.m., the Brockton Fire Department responded to a fire in a pick-up truck that was started by fireworks. The owner had been setting off fireworks in his driveway. He waited approximately 15 minutes for them to cool off and put all of the debris in the bed of his truck that had a plastic bed liner. About an hour later a passerby notified him that his truck was on fire.

All fireworks are illegal in Massachusetts

The possession and use of all fireworks by private citizens is illegal in Massachusetts. This includes Class C fireworks, which are sometimes falsely called "safe and sane fireworks." Class C fireworks include sparklers, party poppers, snappers, firecrackers, spinners, cherry bombs and more. Sparklers burn at 1,800 degrees. It is illegal to transport fireworks into Massachusetts, even if they were purchased legally elsewhere. Illegal fireworks can be confiscated on the spot.

Over the 2015 Fourth of July weekend, the Dennis Fire Department in conjunction with the Dennis Police Department confiscated large quantities of fireworks from several locations within Dennis. The estimated value of all the confiscated fireworks was between $7,000 - $8,000.

For more information on the dangers of fireworks, go to www.mass.gov/dfs webpage - Leave the Fireworks to the Professionals.

1,021 athletes participated in the race this year. On top of that, over 150 people volunteered over the course of the weekend to make the triathlon happen. 32 police details and 9 kayakers were on scene throughout the morning to ensure that athletes remained safe on the route.

Whether racing or volunteering, many participated to remember and honor someone they loved. Family members of Joe Lyons came home from California to compete and volunteer in memory of the husband and father who suffered a fatal heart attack during the first Cohasset Triathlon.

Friends of Will Golden, a Cohasset High School grad and Skidmore College hockey player who took a fatal fall off a roof in March, formed relay teams and raced to remember a friend, peer, and teammate lost too soon. Their registration fees contributed to the Will Golden Memorial Fund.

Others raced for the good of the cause: The Cohasset Tri and Junior Tri benefit the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation, which seeks a cure for juvenile type 1 diabetes.

JDRF was founded in 1970 by the parents of children with juvenile, or Type 1, diabetes, who were desperate to find a cure for the disease as quickly as possible. The disease strikes children suddenly, makes them insulin dependent for life, and carries the constant threat of devastating complications.

Insulin processes sugars in the body and is necessary for survival. People with diabetes have to take insulin either through several shots each day or through an insulin pump which is inserted by catheter.

The short term effects of a severe low blood sugar can be dangerous, and the long term complications from high blood sugars can include heart disease, kidney failure, blindness and amputations.

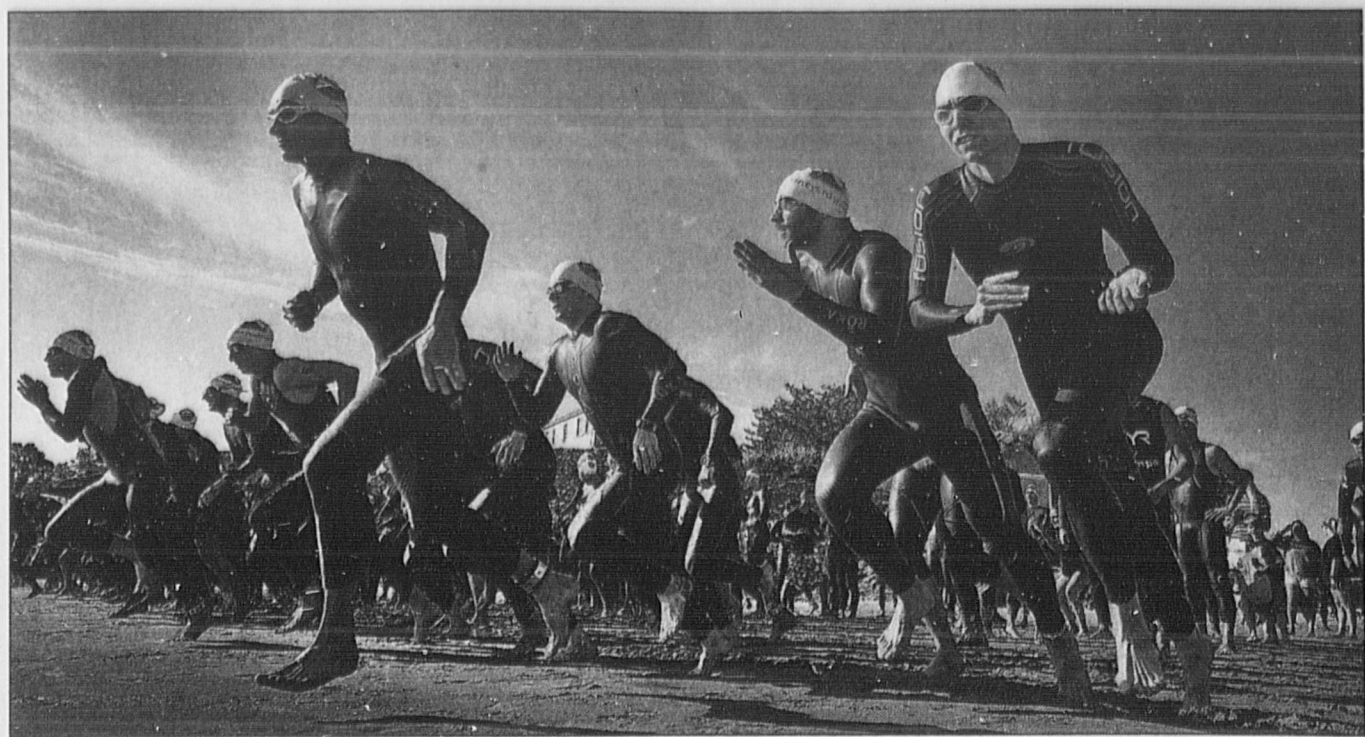

Still other athletes participated for the sheer joy of it — because they love the active life, or because they wanted to challenge themselves, or because the scenery along the race route is just so staggeringly gorgeous.

That scenery is a big draw for many. Only 201 Cohasset athletes competed this year; the vast majority came from out of town, attracted by their own memories or by others' descriptions of the route.

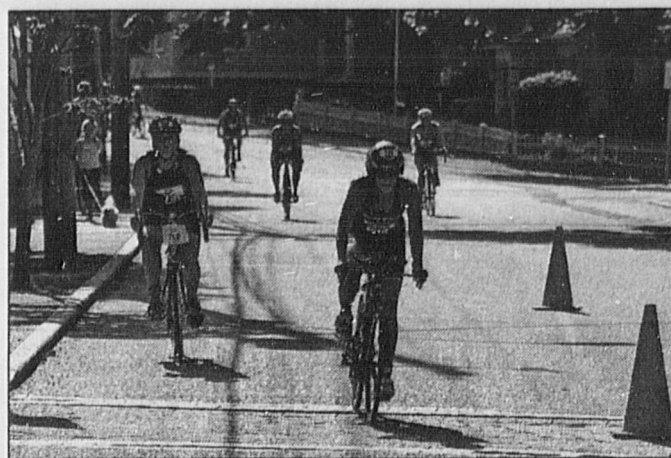

The route includes a quarter mile swim up Sandy Beach, a 12-mile bike route through Cohasset Village and parts of Scituate and Hingham, and a 3.2-mile run around Little Harbor.

The first male to complete this year's race was Justin Keefe, 22 of Somerville, with a time of 54 and 5.8 seconds. This was Keefe's first year competing in the Cohasset Tri, but his second time attending — after providing video coverage one year, Keefe knew he had to come back and do the event himself.

Neck-and-neck with Keefe was Dustin Weigl, 25 of Cambridge, with a time of 54 and 7.2 seconds

— so close to Keefe's time that, at first, the competitors were not even sure who had won. In recent years, Weigl has consistently finished in the top three. He was the overall winner of the 2014 tri.

The first female to complete the race was Ginger Reiner, 39 of Lincoln, with a time of one hour, four minutes and 24.1 seconds. Reiner was also a newcomer to the Cohasset Tri this year. She said she'd heard great things about the race and had to come try it herself.

Rachael Lenz, 23, of Cambridge, finished close on Reiner's heels with a time of one hour, five minutes and 35.6 seconds.

The first Cohasset athlete to finish was Josh Flanagan, who placed 12th overall with a time of one hour, two minutes and 23.8 seconds.

bike ride, and a half-mile run. In the nine-to-11 age group, the swim is 75 yards (three lengths) with a two-mile bike ride and a one-mile run. The oldest group, 12 to 14-year-olds, bikes and runs the same distance but swims twice as many laps.

Kids also have the option to "splash and dash" — that is, to swim and run, but skip the bike portion. This group makes up for the lack of biking by swimming extra lengths: 75 yards, or three lengths, for the eight-and-under group, and 100 yards, or four lengths, for the nine-to-11 group. The swim length doesn't change for the oldest group, and run distances across the board are the same for splash-and-dashers as they are for triathletes.

The air horn blows at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday, July 9. Burnett expects about 250 kids, all between the ages of 6 and 14, to participate, but there's room for as many as 400. Registration starts at $35, with discounts available for teams and families. To register, visit CohassetJuniorTri.com.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

HOW TO SUBMIT YOUR CALENDAR EVENT

Here are some tips on getting your event information posted to the Wicked Local calendar and included in this regional calendar:

REGISTER: Find the Events Calendar on your Wicked Local homepage in the bottom right portion on the website and click on the Add Event button. Click the Register link in the top right hand corner of your calendar page, above Add Event. Enter an email address, first name, last name, password, and password confirmation. Once you click "Register," a verification email will be sent to the email address with which you registered. Be sure to confirm your account through that email to complete the process. Once registered, you will have the ability to add events.

ADD AN EVENT: Click the Add Event button. Fill in required fields such as event title, date, time, category, and venue. Events may be set up to repeat daily, weekly, monthly, or by manually adding additional dates.

ADDITIONAL NOTES:

■ The more detail the better in the event description field and there is a section to provide optional contact information.
 ■ Categories are important for tagging events with discoverable search terms and eases a visitor's ability to find the type of events they are looking to attend. An event can have multiple categories.
 ■ Events must be matched to a known venue. You can also add a new venue if your venue is not listed.
 ■ Events are subject to review before appearing on the site.

IMAGES: Make sure to include an image with your event. Events with images command three times the attention than those without. EvieSays uses a simple image uploader with options to drag and drop or browse, so adding images to your event is easy.
